Importers of South American wine

Bringing South America to your table

For more than 30 years, Vi Ni Imports has brought fine wines from South America to restaurants, wine shops, markets, caterers and distributors. Today Vi Ni is the wine and beer division of Amazonas Latin Food Imports, an importer and wholesale distributor of Latin American foods based in Irwindale, California.

Since the two companies joined in 2017, our customers can order wine, beer and Latin American groceries from a single source. From our warehouses in Los Angeles and the San Francisco Bay Area, our own delivery fleet brings every label in this catalog to customers across the western United States and the Midwest.

Familia Martín

FAMILIA MARTÍN

Familia Martín is the label that carries our own name. After decades of traveling through Argentina's wine country to choose wines for our customers, the Martin family set out to bottle wines that reflect everything we have learned: honest fruit, careful winemaking and a fair price for the quality in the glass.

The wines are made in Mendoza, from vineyards across the province and the high-altitude Uco Valley. Each line in the range honors a part of our story, from everyday varietals to small-lot wines named for the father and son behind the company.

Bodega Humberto Canale

In 1909 the engineer Humberto Canale founded the first winery in Patagonia, in General Roca in the Alto Valle del Río Negro. He had come to the region to help build the irrigation canals that turned the desert valley green, and he stayed to plant vines.

The Old Vineyard line pays tribute to the estate's oldest vines, some planted more than 80 years ago, including a Semillón vineyard from 1942. In 2020 Humberto Canale became the first winery in Patagonia to earn the sustainability certification of Bodegas de Argentina.

More than a century later the winery is still run by the Canale family. The cool, dry climate of the upper valley, far to the south of Mendoza, gives wines with fresh acidity and real elegance, from Pinot Noir and Riesling to Malbec and Merlot.

Bodega Los Haroldos

Bodega Los Haroldos was founded in 1939 by Haroldo Santos Falasco, known to everyone as "Don Lolo," who started out delivering wine by bicycle around the town of Chacabuco in Buenos Aires province. Today the fourth generation of the Falasco family runs the winery.

Coliman and Nampe are the everyday wines; Los Haroldos spans Estate, Reserva and the flagship Gran Corte. In 2015 the fourth generation launched Falasco Wines, the family's premium range, led by Hermandad, whose name means brotherhood.

The winery is in San Martín, in Mendoza's northern oasis, an area known as Argentina's capital of Bonarda. The family also farms vineyards in the high-altitude Uco Valley at the foot of the Andes, and Los Haroldos wines are now exported to 42 countries.

Hermandad

The family's flagship, from the Uco Valley. The Blend is mostly Malbec with Cabernet Sauvignon and Petit Verdot.

Bressano

A "triple terroir" Malbec blending three Uco Valley sites: Paraje Altamira (40%), Gualtallary (35%) and Vista Flores (25%).

Antonieta

A rosé from a single vineyard in Los Chacayes, one of the Uco Valley's most prized districts.

Ferus & Fausto

Ferus is a fresh, focused Malbec and Blanc de Blancs pair; Fausto is a rich Malbec from old vines.

Bodegas López

José López Rivas grew vines and olives in Algarrobo, in Málaga, Spain. When phylloxera devastated Europe's vineyards he emigrated to Argentina in 1886, and in 1898 he founded his winery in Mendoza. More than 125 years later, Bodegas López is still owned and run by the founding family, one of very few in Argentina.

López is famous for a style all its own: wines aged patiently in large French oak casks and then in bottle, and released only when they are ready. Its underground cellars hold vintages going back to 1938, which is why we can offer Montchenot from so many years.

Vinos de guarda

Montchenot

Born as Chateau Montchenot in 1966, this is the López family's classic Gran Reserva: a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Malbec, aged for years in large oak casks and then in bottle. Pour it gently into a decanter and give it time to wake up.

San Rafael, Mendoza · Since 1928

Bodegas Bianchi

Italian immigrant Valentín Bianchi founded his winery in San Rafael, in southern Mendoza, in 1928, calling it El Chiche, “the little winery of great wines.” His son Enzo carried the family's ambition further, and the winery remains a family business today.

Don Valentín Lacrado was created in 1965 by Enzo Bianchi in honor of his father. It is one of Argentina's best-loved table wines, now joined by varietal Malbec and Cabernet Sauvignon.

New Age, launched in the 1990s, pioneered Argentina's lightly sparkling, semi-sweet white style. Light, fruity and low in alcohol, it is best served well chilled.

Aperitifs & Fortified

Argentina loves its aperitivo hour. Livenza Spritz is a bittersweet aperitif of herbs and orange peel, made for the classic spritz with sparkling wine and soda. Americano Bianco is a white aperitivo in the Italian-Argentine tradition, best served over ice.

El Abuelo Oporto

A sweet, port-style fortified red from Mendoza, a longtime Argentine favorite. Serve it lightly chilled after dinner with desserts, cheese or nuts.
